ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and system for declarative user interface dependency-based object property system are provided. A source object property change is obtained. Steady-state values for all dependent properties are obtained. Any dependent properties whose value is not affected by the source property change are eliminated or which are duplicate properties are eliminated. The remaining steady-state post modification dependent object property changes are implemented.